UNIVERSITY OF REDLANDS

GENERAL

The University of Redlands (the “University”) is a California non-profit public benefit corporation founded in 1907 and governed by a self-perpetuating Board of Trustees. The University is a private educational institution providing instruction for both students of traditional college age through its on-campus residential program, College of Arts & Sciences, and for primarily graduate and professional learners through its School of Business & Society, School of Education, Graduate School of Theology and School of Continuing Studies. The University was founded by American Baptists and today is independent but maintains a relationship with the American Baptists which affirms their importance in the establishment of the University. The University’s relationship with the American Baptists does not, however, impose any limits or restrictions on the student body, faculty, administration or Board of Trustees of the University.

On July 1, 2019, the University acquired the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, California, with the University as the surviving entity. The acquisition supports the University’s vision of expanding its geographical footprint in California with an institution having a complementary mission and resulted in the creation of a new graduate school within the University called the Graduate School of Theology.

On June 30, 2022, the University acquired the Presidio Graduate School, in San Francisco, California, with the University as the surviving entity. The acquisition supports the University’s vision of expanding the academic program offerings. Presidio Graduate School is a national leader in sustainability-focused graduate education. The University of Redlands School of Business & Society will establish the Presidio Center for Sustainable Solutions and assume responsibility for Presidio’s academic programs, including its distinguished sustainability-focused MBA and dual MBA-MPA. The Presidio programs will retain their current faculty, focus on environmental sustainability and social justice, and unique, path-breaking curriculum.

On June 3, 2024, the University acquired Woodbury University, in Burbank, California with the University as the surviving entity. The acquisition supports the University’s vision of expanding the academic program offerings. As result of the merger, the University of Redlands will add vibrant programs in architecture, filmmaking, and design to its existing traditional but innovative programs in the arts and sciences, business, education, and theology. The integration of Woodbury, its student body, their highly ranked and accredited programs with Redlands’ strong academic and career services in Southern California will help current and future students find exciting opportunities with some of the region’s top companies, allowing the combined entity to dramatically expand educational opportunities and pursuits. Our combined student populations will have the opportunity to utilize the combined resources and enjoy classes available at both campuses in Burbank and Redlands.

The University’s 160-acre main campus is located 65 miles east of Los Angeles and 45 miles west of Palm Springs in the San Bernardino Valley, along the base of the San Bernardino Mountains. The University also has a 20-acre campus in Marin County, which is home to the Graduate School of Theology and additional programs from the University.

In February 2022, the University celebrated the inauguration of Krista L. Newkirk, J.D., as its 12th president. President Newkirk began her tenure in July 2021, and she is the first woman to hold this post at the University.

As of the Fall 2023 semester, the University provided instruction to approximately 1,879 undergraduate and 118 graduate students enrolled in the College of Arts & Sciences, approximately 222 undergraduates, 827 graduate and 77 doctoral students enrolled in the Schools of Business & Society and Education, and approximately 55 graduate students and 33 doctoral students in the Graduate School of Theology. Additionally, 13 students were enrolled in the School of Continuing Studies. In the 2022-24 academic year, tuition for full-time residential undergraduate and graduate students at the College of Arts &

Sciences is $55,264 per year and $22,410 per year, respectively. Although tuition varies somewhat by academic program, in general, tuition for full-time students enrolled in the Schools of Business & Society and Education for the 2023-24 academic year is $17,112 at the undergraduate degree level and $22,416 at the graduate degree level. In the Fall 2023 semester, the University had 181 full-time instructional faculty and 213 part-time faculty.

Approximately 65% of the 1,997 students enrolled in the College of Arts & Sciences live on campus and participate in the University's food service program. The University's main campus also provides a central identity for faculty and students participating in the on- and off-campus programs in the Schools of Business & Society and Education. The University's low student-to-faculty ratios (an average of approximately 12-to-1) facilitate small class sizes and more personal attention to each student. This factor, combined with a professional and highly qualified faculty (88% of full-time instructional faculty hold PhD's or other terminal degrees), provides all students with the opportunity for a high-quality educational experience.

The Schools of Business & Society and Education continue the mission of the former Alfred North Whitehead College of Lifelong Learning (established in 1976) by providing a quality educational experience for mid-career professionals, as well as students transferring from two- or other four-year colleges to complete an undergraduate degree in business or education. These programs integrate academic work with the professional lives of adult students while reflecting the University's historical commitment to liberal arts education.

Since its founding, the University and the City of Redlands have had a cooperative relationship. The University has enhanced community life in numerous ways, including making its facilities available for a wide variety of community events, including numerous plays, lectures, recitals, exhibits and concerts. The Redlands Symphony Association holds a yearly concert series in the Memorial Chapel, in cooperation with the University. The annual Feast of Lights, a holiday pageant, attracts capacity audiences for four successive nights each December.

In Fall 2021 the University launched a strategic planning process that, at its core, is intended to reenergize the University, provide a pathway to a strong and thriving future, and advance its educational mission. President Newkirk and the Board of Trustees hired the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges (AGB) as a strategic planning partner, as well as Simpson Scarborough, a branding and marketing agency for higher education institutions, to conduct market research. The University conducted strategic planning sessions with the Board of Trustees, the President's Cabinet, faculty, staff, students and alumni over the spring and the Strategic Plan, Forward Together, was approved in Fall 2022. The University began implementation of the Strategic Plan immediately. Details of the Strategic Plan and progress can be found at www.redlands.edu/strategicplan.
